

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

P R E F A C E .

THE present Catalogue has been compiled to supply a want frequently and increasingly felt of late by Angling-book collectors, of a more complete and universal register of the literature of their sport. It is the fifth of the series, and includes six hundred and fifty distinct works. The statistics of its forerunners are as follows:—In 1811, Sir Henry—then Mr. Ellis, contributed to the “British Bibliographer,” the first angling-book list on record. It was limited to eighty works, but was enlarged to one hundred and eighty, in a revised edition appended by Mr. Pickering to Boosey’s “Piscatorial Reminiscences,” in 1836. Four years later, Mr. Wilson published, with his sporting treatise, “The Rod and the Gun,” an abbreviated list of one hundred works on Halieutics; and this was followed in 1847, by the “Waltonian Library” of Dr. Bethune, the able and erudite editor of the American “Complete Angler” of Walton and Cotton, in which publication it figured as an appendix. This latter list is one of the best in principle, and most complete in execution, consisting of three hundred works. Finally, in 1856, appeared the “Bibliographical Catalogue” of Mr. Russell Smith, annexed to Blakey’s “Angling Literature of All Nations.” It contained 264 works, deduction being made (as in the foregoing catalogue of Dr. Bethune) of treatises purely Ichthyological.

On analysing the present list chronologically (and omitting the works of Ausonius, Oppian, Ælian and Ovid), we find that the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries produced, each, a single work on Fishing; the sixteenth, 15; the seventeenth, 74; the eighteenth, 133; and the nineteenth, 422 works.

By a second classification, it appears that America has supplied 14; Denmark, 3; Holland, 6; France, 56; Germany, 75; Italy, 9; Norway, 1; Spain, 2; Sweden, 3; and the United Kingdom, 477 works; two facts being brought thereby into broad relief—first, the far greater popularity attending the sport and its literature in our own country than elsewhere; and secondly, the extraordinary numerical increase of Angling-books during the present century, and especially, I may add, within the last five-and-twenty years.

The latter circumstance is attributable, in a great degree, to the higher tone and style adopted by recent writers on the sport as well as to the employment of that wider range of subject of which Walton furnished so excellent a precedent, and which has emancipated such works from the narrow circle of mere professional readers.

In publishing my list, I wish emphatically to state that I have been largely indebted to the former gleaners in the same field, the result of whose labours I have not hesitated to appropriate, whenever, after careful testing, I have found it to be correct in fact, and fair in appreciation. That some unaided search has devolved on me, however, over and above the mere task of collation, will be seen from the important number of surplus works annexed to the register, and which have extended it to more than twice the length of any of its predecessors.

It is my pleasure to add, also, that I have derived much valuable assistance from the co-operation of several gentlemen interested in the question, and especially from Mr. William Heseltine, of Laleham; Mr. Joseph Crawhall, of Morpeth; and the distinguished Angler, Mr. Francis Francis.

Ælianus (Claudius), De Naturâ Animalium. Libri xvii. Gr. et Lat. curante Abr. Gronovio. 4to. Londini, 1744. Best edit. by Schneider. 8vo. Leips. 1784.

[The first, and, indeed, the only writer amongst the ancients that makes mention of fishing with the artificial fly. In the 15th book of his history, he says: "The Macedonians, who live on the banks of the river Astreus, which flows midway between Berea and Thessalonica, are in the habit of catching a particular fish in that river by means of a fly called hippurus; a very singular insect it is—bold and troublesome like all its kind, in size a hornet, marked like a wasp, and buzzing like a bee. The predilection of the fish for their prey, though familiarly known to all who inhabit the district, does not induce the angler to attempt their capture by impaling the living insect. Adepts in the sport have contrived a taking device—caphosa quedam machinatio—to circumvent them, for which purpose they invest the body of the hook with purple wool, and having adjusted two wings of a waxy colour, so as to form an exact imitation of the hippurus, they drop these abstruse cheats gently down the stream. The scaly pursuers, who hastily rise and expect nothing less than a dainty bait, snap the decoy, and are immediately fixed to the hook." The honour of first pointing out this passage is attributed to Sherburne Oliver (Chatto) in his "Scenes and Recollections of Fly Fishing."]

[The best, but a rare edition. In his 10th Idyll Ansonius celebrates the Moselle, and describes its fish and fishing. He mentions two species of fish—the Salar and the Fario, which are evidently the burn and salmon-trout of modern times; and, although he takes no notice of angling with a fly, he describes a scene of river-fishing with rod and a float in the language of poetry and truth. See "Mosella," v. 240-265. Anonius flourished about 317 A.D. The Mosella is also published in Wernsdorf's Poetas Latini Minores.

BADDELEY. London Angler's Book, or Waltonian Chronicle; containing much original information to Anglers generally, combined with numerous amusing Songs and Anecdotes of Fish and Fishing never before published, &c. 8vo. London: Baddeley, 1834.

[Coarse and Cockney.]

Badham (C. D.), Prose Halieutics; or, Ancient and Modern Fish Tattle. Post 8vo. London: J. W. Parker, 1854.

(Reprinted in part from Fraser's Magazine.)

Bailey (William), Angler's Instructor; a Treatise on the best mode of Angling in English Rivers, Lakes, and Ponds; and on the habits of the Fish. 8vo. London: Longman. Nottingham; Forman, 1857.

[An excellent practical treatise by the best Nottingham angler of the day.]

Bainbridge (Geo. C.), Fly-fisher's Guide: illustrated by coloured plates representing upwards of forty of the most useful Flies, accurately copied from nature. 8vo. Liverpool, 1816; 2nd edit. 8vo. Lond. 1828; 3rd edit. 8vo. Lond. 1834; 4th edit. 8vo. Lond. 1840.

Barlow (Francis), Seuerall Wayes of Hunting, Hawking, and Fishing, according to the English manner, and invented by Francis Barlow. Etched by W. Hollar. Oblong 4to. 1671.

[An extremely scarce work.]

Barker (Thomas, of Bracemeale, Salop), Art of Angling; wherein are discovered many rare Secrets very necessary to be known by all that delight in that recreation. 12mo. London, 1651. Another edit. 4to. Lond. 1653, without the author's name. (It is sometimes annexed to the "Countryman's Recreations," 4to. 1654.) A reprint of the 1st edit. was published by Burn, in 1820, and the edit. of 1653 was reprinted at Leeds by Inchbold and Gawtress, 1817.

[A single copy of Burn's edition was printed on vellum, and four on straw-coloured paper. Of the Leeds edition a single copy was struck off in 4to. and sold at Prince's sale, 1l. 4s.]

Barker's Delight; or, the Art of Angling. By Thomas Barker. 2nd edit. with considerable additions and commendatory Verses prefixed. 12mo. 1657 and 1659. Reprinted by Burn, London, 1820. Again by Hodgson and Co., some copies of which have the name of E. Bryant as publisher, 1826.

[A copy of Burn's edition was printed on vellum, and, with the foregoing vellum copy, sold at Stace's sale (1843) for 2l. 2s. Four copies of the same edition were printed on straw-coloured paper. "Barker's Delight" is inserted in the "Young Sportsman's Miscellany," 12mo. 1836.—In an epistle to the reader, prefixed to the 1st edition, and in the dedication of the second to Lord Montague, Barker speaks of himself as having practised angling for half-a-century, adding: "If any noble or gentle Angler have a mind to discourse of these ways and experiments, I live in Henry VIII's Gift, the next door to the Gatehouse."

Westminster, where I shall be ready to satisfy them and maintain my art: my name is Barker." The 2nd edition, so called, 12mo. 1657, with commendatory verses prefixed, is the first that has the title of "Barker's Delight." The edition of 1659 is the same as the preceding, with the exception of a new title-page. The original edition sold at Haworth's, 17s.; at Prince's, 11s. Barker was the first promulgator of the heresy of salmon-roe.]

Bowlker (Richard, of Ludlow), The Art of Angling, improved in all its parts, especially Fly-fishing. 12mo. Worcester (supposed date 1746). 2nd edit. by Charles Bowlker, of Ludlow, his son. 8vo. Birmingham: Baskerville, 1774; 3rd edit. 1780; 4th edit. 1786; 5th edit. 1788; 6th edit. 1792. A new edition, 8vo. Ludlow, 1806; 8vo. Ludlow, 1814; 12mo. Ludlow, 1829. Many subsequent editions have been printed at Ludlow and Birmingham.

[Charles Bowlker died at Ludlow, in Shropshire, 31st December, 1779; he was considered the most finished fly-fisher of his day. The 1st edition sold at Haworth's sale, 1l. 1s.]

Boyle (Honble. Robert), Occasional Reflections upon several Subjects, whereto is premis'd a Discourse about such kind of Thoughts. 12mo. London: printed by W. Wilson, for Henry Herringman, and are to be sold at his Shop at the Anchor, in the Lower Walk in the New Exchange. Anno Dom. MDCLXV.

[I include this work in my list because others have done so before me; but though the 4th section contains frequent allusions to angling, the details of the sport are merely employed as pegs on which to hang moral and religious reflections. "For," says the Author, "being really a great lover of angling, and frequently diverting myself at that sport, sometimes alone and sometimes in company, the accidents of that recreation were the true themes on which the following discourses were not the only meditations I had made." Discourse IV. is entitled, "Upon Fishing with a counterfeit Fly." Discourse V., "Upon a Fish's struggling after swallow'd the Hook." Discourse X., "Upon a Fish's running away with the Bait." And Discourse XV., "Upon catching store of Fish at a baited place." The 1st edition is rare. It sold at Rev. W. Cotton's sale, 14s.]

Cox (Nicholas), Gentleman's Recreations, in four parts, viz., Hunting, Hawking, Fowling, Fishing and Agriculture. 8vo. Lond. 1674; 2nd edit. 8vo. Lond. 1677; 3rd edit. 8vo. Lond. 1686; 4th edit. 8vo. Lond. 1697; 5th edit. 8vo. Lond. 1706; 6th edit. 8vo. Lond. 1721.

[For illustrations it has a "large sculpture giving easy directions for blowing the horn, and four other sculptures proper to each recreation." The later editions must have undergone some modification, for the fifth contains no mention of Agriculture. The folding sheet with the musical notes for the horn is often wanting. At a later date the different parts were published separately.]

Daniel (Rev. W. B.), Supplement to the Rural Sports. Royal 8vo., 4to., and imperial 4to. London, 1813.

[The Supplement contains Anecdotes of Fish and Fishing and an account of the Rivers of Great Britain. It reproduces, without acknowledgment, the Ellis list of works on Angling, and altogether savours overmuch of book-making.]

Davy (Sir Humphrey), Salmonis; or, Days of Fly-fishing, in a series of Conversations, with some accounts of the habits of Fishes belonging to the genus Salmo. 12mo. Lond. Murray, 1828; 2nd edit., with engraved views, 12mo. Lond. 1829; 3rd edit. 12mo. Lond. 1832; 4th edit., with additions by his brother, Dr. John Davy, 12mo. Lond. 1851.

[This book ranks high in the scale of Angling Literature—higher, I should say (if it were not for the audacity of the dictum) than it really merits. It lacks that freshness of heart and simple naïveté of style that we look for first of all in a genuine Angling Book. We may say of its Author, to use a French phrase—"Qu'il était bien trop Grand Seigneur, pour être bon pêcheur," an appreciation that, in its inference, extends also to his work.]

D., Esquire. 12mo. Lond. 1613; 2nd edit., augmented with many approved experiments, by W. Lawson. 3rd edit. 18mo. Lond.; 4th edit., Lond., printed by S. H. for John Harrison, and are to be sold by Francis Coles, at his shop at the Old Bayley. 1652.

[This poetical treatise is entered in the Stationers' Books as by John Denny: but Walton ascribed it to John Davors, and by others (Howlett amongst them) it is ascribed, without sufficient authority, to Donne and Davies. It contains commendatory verses by Jo. Davies, and is dedicated by the Stationer R. J. to Mr. John Harborne, of Tackley, in the county of Oxford. In the title of this book is a woodcut representing two men, one, treading on a serpent, with a sphere at the end of his angle, and on a label—

Hold, hooke and line,
Then all is mine;

the other with a fish—

Well fayre the pleasure
That brings such treasure.

It was reprinted in the "Censura Literaria," with a short advertisement and an index in 1811, and also in the "British Bibliographer" (a hundred copies of each were taken off separately). Beloe says, "Perhaps there does not exist in the circle of English literature a rarer book than this. Sir John Hawkins confessed he could never get a sight of it." In its poetry it ranks high, and indeed it may be matter of doubt whether the first Poet of the Craft does not still hold his supremacy and wear his crown.—Sold at Milner's sale, 6l. 2s. 6d. Franck (Richard), Northern Memoirs, calculated for the Meridian of Scotland; wherein most or all of the Cities, Citadels, Seaports, Castles, Forts, Fortresses, Rivers, and Rivulets are compendiously described. Together with choice collections of various discoveries, remarkable observations, theological notions, political axioms, national intrigues, polemick inferences, contemplations, speculations, and several curious and industrious inspections, lineally drawn from antiquaries and other noted and intelligible persons of honour and eminency.

To which is added, the Contemplative and Practical Angler, by way of diversion; with a narrative of that dextrous and mysterious art experimented in England, and perfected in more remote and solitary parts of Scotland. By way of dialogue.

Writ in the year 1658, but not till now made publick, by Richard Franck, Philanthropus.

Plures necat gula quam Gladius.

London: Printed for the Author. To be sold by Henry Mortclock, at the Phoenix, in St. Paul's Church-yard. 1694.

[Reprinted (250 copies) with an anonymous preface (by Sir Walter Scott) and with an abbreviated title. 8vo. Edinburgh, 1821.

As a specimen of style, this book is sui generis, or only to be equalled (suggests Scott) for its stupendous pretentiousness, by the writings of Sir Thomas Urquhart, of Cromerty. It contains abundant proof, however, that in the Academy of Angling its author had taken a high degree, and that he could use the rod, on an occasion, for other whippings than those of pool and stream, his flagellation of "honest Isaac" gives smarting evidence. This latter insult no contemporary voice was raised to vindicate, but Time, with its "revenges," has wrought out an ample and emphatic atonement.

Franck is the first English writer on angling that describes that mystical fish, the burbot (see page 272 of the original work, and 330 of the reprint). "To search for him in Trent," says he, "striving against a stream, is like Queen Elizabeth's Scogen, that, at the sun's meridian (with a candle and lantern), sought up and down for an honest man."

There is also an interesting mention, in "Northern Memoirs," page 37 of the preface, and again page 177 of the work (reprint), of three noted anglers of the time, Merrill, Faulkner, and Owdham, whom some biblioplists suppose to have written three several angling works, since lost to the world. Others, on the contrary, incline to the belief that in the passages in question Franck merely intended to set up an antithesis (touching the comparative merits of tuition) between the speculative book-writing angler, on the one hand, and the practical experienced wielder of the rod, innocent of ink, but well up to all the dodges and devices of the sport, on the other. He speaks of "collections and manuals," it is true, but there is nothing to show that these were more than the mere occasional memoranda which that class of men are in the habit of jotting down, for their private guidance,—while of Owdham he says distinctly that his "collections and experiments were lost with himself."

Those who are disposed to give their faith to "lost Plasiade" in the constellation of angling authors, will find better ground for their theory in Mr. John Hockenhull's "Pleasant Hexameter Verses in Praise of Mr. Barber's Art of Angling," in which he asks—"Markham, Ward, Lawson, dare you with Barker now compare?"

Mr. Agar Hansard exaggerates the extreme rareness of "Northern Memoirs." I believe there are at least five copies of the first edition extant, including the one in the Grenville Library, British Museum.

GARDINER. A Booke of Angling or Fishing; wherein is showed, by conference with Scriptures, the agreement between the Fisherman, Fishes, and Fishing of both Natures, Temporall and Spirituall. By Samuel Gardiner, Doctor of Divinitie—

Matthew iv. 19. I will make you fishers of men.

18mo. London: printed by Thomas Purfoot, 1606. Dedicated to Sir Henrie Gaudie, Sir Miles Corbet, Sir Hamond Le Strange, Sir Henry Spellman, Knights, my verie kind friends. After the leaf of dedication is a page "To the Reader;" and on a fourth page are "The Contents of this Booke, in two Latin verses; which I deliver in English thus:

The Church I governe as a shippe,
Wee, seae with world compare,
The Scriptures are the enclosing nettes,
And men the fishes are."

Then follows the work itself, in 162 pages, divided into Chapters, the titles of which, because of the rarity of the book, are here sub-joined literally; with the number of pages occupied by each:

Chap. I. Of the Fisherman's Ship or Boat; pp. 1-12.

Chap. II. Of the Waters that are for this Fishing; pp. 12-23.

Chap. III. Of the Nets and Angle-Rod that are for this Fishing; pp. 23-44.

Chap. IV. Of the Fishermen that principally are appointed for this office; pp. 44-80.

Chap. V. The especiall duties of the Spirituall Fisherman; pp. 81-94.

Chap. VI. Of the Fisherman's Baytes; pp. 95-105.

Chap. VII. Of the Fishes that the Spirituall Angler or Fisherman only fisheth for; pp. 105-18.

Chap. VIII. The Sympathie of Natures; of the Fishes of both natures; pp. 119-146.

Chap. IX. Of the Antipathie and Differences of Fishes of both sortes, and of the Angling of both kindes; pp. 147-62.

[“This book,” says Hone in his Year Book, may be denominated “Fishing Spiritualized.” He gives several extracts from it. The Rev. H. S. Cotton wrote on the flyleaf of his copy, “I know of no other copy of this book, nor is it mentioned in any catalogue or list of Angling books that I have ever seen. I believe this to be unique.” At his sale it was bought in at 4l. 2s. and sold again at the dispersion of Mr. Lynch Cotton's collection for 40l., to Mr. Toovey.]

As also the method of fishing in Hackney River, and the names of the best stands there; with the manner of making all sorts of good tackle, fit for any water whatsoever. Dedicated to Sir Robert Fisher. 12mo. London: 1676 and 1682. Also, a later edition, published by Fox, 1766, with a Frontispiece borrowed from Lowndes's edition of "Brooke's Art of Angling."

[Mr. Haalewood, noticing the edition of 1676, says there was probably an earlier edition, from the date of the licence for the press, which stands "with allowance, Oct. 20th, 1674. Roger L'Estrange." No earlier edition, however, is known to be extant. In the edition of 1682 the title was changed to "The Young Angler's Companion," &c. The body of this work underwent no alteration beyond the insertion of a paragraph, entitled "To Fox Fish," at page 32 of the first part. The method consists of the use of what he calls "Oculus India Berries," and he cautions his readers "that they practise not this without licence from the owners, least the whipping-post or pillery be their reward." At p. 31 he tells us of Barbell frequenting London Bridge, and his "method of Fishing in Hackney River" is precluded thus:—"Then go to Mother Gilbert's, at the Flower de Luce at Clapton, near Hackney, and whilst you are drinking a pot of ale bid the maid make you two or three pennyworth of ground-bait, and some paste (which they do very neatly and well.)" At page 40, he adds, "There is an excellent stand in the second meadow on the left hand, beyond the ferry, under a willow tree, in the midst of the meadow, by the water side." Amongst the necessary equipments of an angler he recommends, "A good coat for all weathers; an apron to put your ground-bait, stones, and paste in; a neat rod of about 4 foot long; and, if you have a boy to go along with you, a good neat's tongue and a bottle of Canary should not be wanting: to the enjoyment of which I leave you."—1st edition, Haworth's sale, 3l. 3s.; 2nd edit. 2l. 6s.]

Conradus Heresbachius, Counsellor to the Hygh and Mightie Prince, the Duke of Cleue; conteyning the whole Arte and Trade of Husbandry, with the Antiquitie and commendation thereof. Newly Englished and increased by Barnabe Googe, Esquire.* 4to. London: Printed by Richard Watkins, 1577. Black letter. Reprinted 1586, and again 1614.

[This work treats briefly of Fish and Fish-ponds. At the back of the title are the arms of Barnabe Googe, the translator, with the device "Post Tristia Læta." The book is dedicated to "The Right Worshipful, his very goodde freend, Sir Wylliam Fitzwylliams, Knight."

Sir Harris Nicholas, in his biography of Walton, says, "There is so much resemblance between many passages of Walton's work and Heresbachius' Husbandry, by Googe, which was first printed in 1577, as to render it probable he was indebted to that work for some of his ideas." This may have been the case; but the "Complete Angler" bears a still stronger resemblance, both as regards matter and manner, to Heresbach's former work, "De Venatione, Aucupio et Piscatione," of which it may be interesting to give some account here. The work in question was the fruits of its author's leisure, and was written at his country house during his occasional retirement from the exigencies of his life at court. It consists of a dialogue, in which the interlocutors bear names significative of their different vocations. Philotherus opens the conversation with an eulogium of the sport of hunting. Lagus follows, and descants on the pastime of hunting the hare, the fox, the badger, and the deer. Elapporous passes in review the chase of the stag, the wild boar, &c. Haliens takes the greatest share in the colloquy, and treats of the different modes of fishing, and the various kinds of fish. The close parallel between the mechanism of the above and that of Walton's Angler must be evident enough. I am not aware, however, that "De Venatione" has ever been into English. I find no trace of it in Lowndes or any other Bibliographical authority; but the original Latin version may very well have fallen into Walton's hands, and contributed to give its present form and fashion to his immortal work.

Barnabe Googe's translation of the "Four Bookes of Husbandry" is so quaint, poetical, and charming, that it must be matter of regret he did not also undertake its companion work. Googe was a poet by vocation, and the author of "Ecloga, Epitaphes, and Sennettes," newly written 1563, of which only two copies exist. He also produced "The whole Art and Trade of Husbandry, in Four Books,"* 1614, and several other works, translated and original. Some curious letters concerning his marriage with Mary Darell, of Scotney, in Kent, are printed in the "Restituta," vol. iv. p. 307-11.]

Cockayne (Benjamin) Rule, for Angling. 1670.

[This MS. (now in possession of Mr. Heseltine) figured in the sale catalogue of the Rev. H. Cotton, 1836, and was set forth as the "Original and unpublished manuscript in the autograph of the Author, who was a relation and friend of Charles Cotton's." To such a claim, however, it has no right, being clearly modern, both as regards the paper and handwriting. That it may be a copy from an older MS. is possible; it is at best, however, but a mere collection of recipes for baits, extracted from the different (unnoticed) published works on the sport. It is prefaced by the rough rhymes,

"My rodde and my line,
My cork and my lead," &c.

to which the so-called Benjamin Cockayne sets his signature, with the date, 1670, but which are quoted by Walton, in his "Compleat Angler," 1653, as "An old rhyme, from an old fish book."]

De Arte Piscatoria. Concerning Angling for a Trout or Grayling.

[In the possession of Dr. Bethune, the editor of the American edition of "Walton's Angler," who thus describes it:—

"This is a very curious MS. by Robert Noble, who appears to have been a clergyman. It begins thus: 3 waica.—1. At the top; 2. At the bottom; 3. In the middle. At the top with a fly. At the bottom with ground-bait. In the middle with a minnow or ground-bait.

At the top is of two sorts, with .. 1. {A quick fly.
2. {An artificial fly.

At the bottom is of two sorts .. 1. {By hand.
2. {Or with a float.

For the middle is of two sorts .. 1. {With a minnow for a trout.
2. {Or with a ground-bait for a grayling or omber, voige omandr.

Of fly-fishing at the top .. 1. {With a natural fly.
2. {With an artificial or made fly.

1. First of the natural fly, which are to be used in May or June early, namely, the greendrake, the stone-fly, and the chamlet-fly, to which I may add the grasshopper, the most excellent of any. After this follows '2. With an artificial or made fly you are to angle with a line (or tawm), &c. Then follows a list of flies for each month, the same, and in nearly the same words, as Cotton's, in his second part of the "Complete Angler," and the treatise breaks off. From this it is clear that either Cotton copied from this treatise, or the treatise is a synopsis from Cotton's. There is no date to the treatise itself, but it is bound up with an essay on another subject following it, dated 1699, seven years before Cotton published his work. The paper following it, as far as can be judged, seems to be later, though in the same handwriting. There is also in the same book a baptismal record of Rob. Noble's children, the first date of which is 1699, the last 1701, with other papers. These throw uncertainty upon the date of the treatise; but if it be older than Cotton's work it accounts for the rapidity with which Cotton prepared his essay; the details on fly-fishing being thus ready to his hand. There are variations, slight indeed, but marked, from Cotton's book, which make the treatise, to my eye, appear more like an original than a copy. It was purchased from Wm. Garret, of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, and is named in his catalogue for August, 1846."]

[Sold at Prince's sale, 11. 9s.]

Transcript from, and Memoranda relating to, various works on Angling, both English and Foreign. 4to.

[Sold at Prince's sale, 19s.]

Trolling. A Treatise on the Art of taking Pike, Perch, Chub, &c., with the Trimmer, to which is added a description of the necessary Tackle, together with directions for its use, &c., with pencil drawings.

[Prepared for publication, and dated Nov. 1820. Sold at Prince's sale, 7s.]

"An old manuscript Treatise on Fishing," says Blakey, "was found among the remains of the valuable library belonging to the Abbey of St. Bertin's, at St. Omer. This work was supposed, by the style of writing, to have been composed about the year one thousand, and to have been divided into twenty-two chapters. There was appended to the manuscript a full list of all river fish, the baits used for taking them, and the seasons for angling for each sort of fish."

Markham (Gervase), Country Contentments; or the Husbandman's Recreations. 1st edit. 4to. London, 1611; 2nd edit. 1613; 3rd. edit, 1615; 4th edit. 1631; 5th edit. 1635; 6th edit. 1639; 7th edit. 1640; 8th edit. 1649; 9th edit. 1656; 10th edit. 1664; 11th edit. 1668; 12th edit. 1675.

[The first edition does not contain the treatise on angling, which is headed, "The whole Art of Angling; as it was written in a small treatise in Rime, and now, for the better understanding of the reader, put into prose and adorned and enlarged." The rhymes from which the art of angling was taken were probably those by John Denny, in his "Secrets of Angling," 1613. It is word for word the same as the treatise published under the title of "The Pleasures of Princes," which see.

With the above work are usually bound up "Cheap and Good Husbandry," the "English House-wife," the "Enrichment of the Weald of Kent," and other tracts. In the first of these works, fishponds are treated of. Markham also edited an edition of the Book of St. Albans, under the title of "The Gentleman's Academie," in 1595. He commenced writing in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and appears, says Hart, "to be the first English writer who deserves to be called a hackney writer."

Markham (Gervase), Young Sportsman's Instructor in Angling, Fowling, Hawking, Hunting. 48mo. Sold at the Golden Ring in Little Britain, London, 1652. Reprinted by Gosden, 1825 and 1829.

[Advertised 1744, by a second title, as "A Compleat and Experienced Angler, in two parts; or the Angler's Vade Mecum, 12mo. Printed for Congress." There was another edition (same size) entitled "Markham's Sportsman's Delights," printed by S. Gamage, at Worcester (n.d.), in which the portion relating to hawking is omitted. Original edition sold at Broderip's, 1l. 2s.; Gosden's edition, on vellum (six copies printed), at White Knight's, 5s.]

[Nearly identical with "The Angler's Guide to the Horse and Groom," of which, however, this must have been the forerunner.]

Martin (Rev. James), Angler's Guide; the most complete and practical ever written. To which is added a graphic and laughable story, entitled "The Three Jolly Anglers." 12mo. London, 1854.

Mascall (Leonard), Booke of Fishing with Hooke and Line, and all other instruments thereunto belonging; also of sundrie Engines and Traps to take Polcats, Buzzards, Rats, Mice, &c. &c., with very curious woodcuts of the pike and proche hook, instruments, &c. &c. 4to. London, 1590. Printed by John Wolfe. London, 1596; London, 1600; London, 1606. Black letter.

[The first part, containing the treatise of fishing (taken from Juliana Berner's), ends at page 50; the second part, at page 93. This latter part has a folding leaf between pp. 86-7, of "The crow-net set or bent." A copy of the edition of 1590 is in the British Museum. An imperfect copy, sold at Haworth's, 1l. 7s.; at Brand's, 3l. 3s. The editions of 1596 and 1600, sold at Haworth's, 1l. 19s. and 2l. 12s. 6d.]

On Angling. Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, 1852.

[Quoted by Blakey, who, in his "Historical Sketches," praises the volume and cites some verses on "The Salmon Fly." Speaking of American Angling Works, he says:—"In the United States angling literature has been cultivated with considerable ardour within the last thirty years. We find books on the subject, in every section of this vast continent, of more or less merit and pretensions, both in poetry and prose"—a statement which, I regret to say, is mainly imaginative. Angling books are, in fact, the reverse of numerous on the other side the Atlantic. Dr. Bethune (a good authority), in his list appended to the American edition of Walton, 1847, includes but three; and the succeeding years have not materially increased that number.]

Oppian's Halieuticks of the Nature of Fishes and Fishing of the Ancients, in five books. Translated from the Greek (into English Verse), with an account of Oppian's Life and Writings, and a Catalogue of his Fishes. 8vo. Oxford, 1722. The translators were Mr. Draper and Mr. Jones, both of Balliol College. There is also a French translation, "Les Halieutiques, traduits par J. M. Limes, avec Remarques," &c. 8vo. Paris, 1817, the notes to which are highly esteemed; and an Italian translation, by A. M. Salvini, Florence, 1728. The Editio Princeps bears date Florentiæ, 1515, and the Aldine edition appeared two years later.

[Oppian holds the foremost rank among the ancient writers on Halleutica. He flourished in the time of Severus, about A.D. 198, and wrote three Poems in Hexameters; one on Hawking, lost; another, in four books, on Hunting; and the above work on Halleutica, in five books. Amongst the losses the Angling Library has sustained in this category are the following:—

Hallentika, an Epic Poem, by Pancrates the Arcadian.

———— an Epic Poem, by Posidonius, a Corinthian.

———— a Book in Prose, by Seleucus of Tarsus.

Hallentikoa, by Numinus of Heraclea.

Haspallentika, an Epic Poem in four books, by Seleucus of Emesa.

Hallena, an Epic by Alexander the Etolian, a tragic writer, who, according to Suedas, was one of the tragic Pleiad.

Hallentikoa, a Book in Prose by Leonidas of Byzantium, probably about A.D. 90.]

[In the next edition the title was altered as follows:—"The Compleat Fisher, or True Art of Angling; revised and corrected by W. Wright and other experienced Anglers. Sold by John Osborn, at the Golden Bull, Paternoster Row. 1740." At the back of the title is a recommendation of the work, signed—

Wm. Wright, Wm. Andrews, Rob. Lewes, Phillips Brice,
Rob. Cole, J. Turner, Roger Fillwood, J. Hollings.
Which asserts that "this book has passed several editions." The places round London for angling, noticed in this work, are worth attention.

There is another edition printed for J. Hazard and J. Wright, fronting Stationers' Hall (n.d.) And one of the same size, title, and date, with a different wood-cut at the beginning, and with material variations.

The work was reproduced as the "True Art of Angling, being a clear and speedy way of taking all sorts of fresh-water Fish, with the worm, fly, paste, and other baits in their proper seasons, &c. 12mo. London: Onesimus Ustonson, 1770."

A MS. note of Mr. Donovan, in his copy of the latter says: "This book is so very rare, that Ustonson, the son of the author, who was alive some years ago, thought he had the only copy, and that even Mr. Haworth had none. This last is a mistake. Mr. H. had it. It is, however, very rare."

If I may judge by the occurrence of the edition of 1770 in almost every sale catalogue in my possession, its rareness is more than equivocal. Between Ustonson's edition and Hazard and Wright's, there was one printed for John Herro, in Bell-yard, Temple Bar, Ustonson's predecessor.]

[This translation of Vanier was inserted entire in the Censura Litteraria, by Mr. Haalewood; the separate copies, to which the title was added, were but few. The whole was reprinted by Daniel in his supplement to "Rural Sports."

Venables (Colonel Robert), The Experienced Angler; or, Angling improved, being a General Discourse of Angling. 8vo. Lond. 1662. Advertised as now newly extant, in the "Kingdoms Intelligencer" of September 9, 1661. 2nd edit. 12mo. Lond.; 3rd edit. 12mo. Lond. 1668; 4th edit. 12mo. Lond. 1676; 5th edit. 12mo. Lond. 1683; 6th edit. 8vo. Lond.: Burn, 1825. The latter, a reprint, with a memoir of Col. Robert Venables; also published by Gosden, 1827.

[The 2nd edition was probably printed about 1666, and burnt in the Great Fire; no copy is at present known.

Col. Venables' name first appears in the third edition.

The fourth edition forms the third part of the fifth edition of Walton's Angler. The first edition sold at Cotton's sale for 12s.; at Taylleure's, for 14s.; at Prince's, 16s.]

Walton (Isaac, of Stafford), The Compleat Angler; or the Contemplative Man's Recreation, being a Discourse of Fish and Fishing, not unworthy the perusal of most Anglers. 12mo. London, 1653. (Price Eighteenpence). 2nd edit. 12mo. London, 1655; 3rd edit. London, 1664; 4th edit. 12mo. London, 1668; 5th edit., forming the first of the Universal Angler by Walton, Cotton, and Venables. 12mo. London, 1676.

[A facsimile reprint of the 1st edition appeared in 1810. 12mo London, Bagster.

The 2nd edition, which was published only two years after the first, appears to have been almost rewritten, with the introduction of a third interlocutor in Anceps, and great additions in every part.

The 3rd edition, London, 1661 and 1664, has titles of both dates no other variance in the body of the work, but a postscript was first added to this edition touching the laws of angling, and an index.

The 4th edition is a paginary reprint from the third edition.

The 5th edition is augmented, and the second part added on fishing for trout and grayling, written by Charles Cotton, Esq., of Beresford.

The above are all of the editions of the "Complete Angler," published during the author's life.

The other editions in proportion. A copy of the fifth edition, containing an autograph note of Walton, addressed to his friend Mrs. Wallop, sold at Prince's sale for 35*l.*]

Walton and Cotton's Complete Angler. Edited by Moses Browne. 12mo. London, 1750. 2nd edit. 1759; 3rd edit. 1772. With cuts.

[The 2nd edition was announced as being very much amended and improved; and the 3rd has twenty pages additional matter, with "several very useful notes and directions," and the songs set to music. Browne's editing was done with gusto; unfortunately the whim took him to prune and polish his author's style, to suppress passages in his prose, to smooth down roughnesses in his verse, and to adapt him to the over-refined and fastidious taste of the day, a sacrilege all reverent lovers of old Izaak will find it hard to forgive.]

Walton and Cotton's Complete Angler, edited by John Hawkins, Esq., afterwards Sir John Hawkins. 8vo. London, 1760. 2nd edit.

1766 (the same as the foregoing, with a new title page); 3rd edit. 1775; 4th edit. 1784; 5th edit. 1792 (edited by John Sidney Hawkins, Esq.); 6th edit. 1797 (edited by the same, but without the large plates); 7th edit. 1808 (printed by Bagster, in three sizes—demy 8vo., royal 8vo., and 4to.); 8th edit. 1815 (edited by Sir Henry Ellis, with new notes, &c., printed by Bagster, at Broxbourne, in two sizes—demy 8vo. and royal 8vo.)

[The 1st edition of this series was advertised 27th September, 1759, as in the press and speedily to be published, in opposition to Moses Browne's 2nd edition, published in that year. On the 18th July, 1760, it was announced as the only correct and complete edition, and the reader was informed that cuts "are now added of the principal scenes, designed by Mr. Wale, and engraved by Ryland, in which the characters are dressed in the habits of the times, which cuts, the reader may be assured, cost, in designing and engraving, upwards of one hundred pounds." Browne put forth a rival advertisement, vaunting his own emendation of the poetry, and declaring the boasted plates "copied from the designs in his, and the life of Walton in chief part borrowed from the one printed by him."

A copy of Hawkins's 1st edition, 4to., sold at Haworth's sale, 2l. 11s., and at Valentine's, 1l. 4s. At Higgs's sale a copy of the 7th edition (1808), illustrated with above two hundred and seventy prints and drawings from rare portraits, proof impressions of plates of fish, &c., sold for 63l. It was bound by Gosden, and the bands of the book made of wood from the door of Cotton's fishing house, taken off near the lock, where it was probable Isaac's hand must have touched it.

Dr. Bethune says, "Gosden's own illustrated copy (if I make out correctly a pencilled note appended by him to my copy of Higgs's sale catalogue), unbound, single leaves, in a portfolio, sold for 110l.!"

Reprinted again, London, Washbourne, 1842; 4th edit. re-edited, with a new set of plates by Absolon. 12mo and 8vo. London: Bogue, 1844.

[Until the appearance of Pickering's splendid version of Walton, Major's early editions held the first rank, and even Stothard's illustrations can scarcely be considered to bear away the bell from those of Absolon in the edition of 1844. Dr. Bethune says of this edition, "Art could scarcely go further, and no more elegant volume can find place in a library." Of Major's introductory essay, a well-meant but lamentable piece of twaddle, the less said the better.]

APPENDIX.

SPECIFICATION OF THE VARIOUS COPIES AND EDITIONS OF THE BOOK OF ST. ALBANS.

- i. This edition does not contain the "Treatyse of Fysshynge."
- ii. This present boke shewyth the manere of hawkyng and huntynge: and also of diuysynge of Cote armours? It shewyth also a good matere belongynge to horses: with other cōmenable treatyses. And ferdermore of the blaysynge of armys: as here after it may appere. Small folio.

Juliana Berners, or Barnes, to whom the above Treatises were ascribed, is supposed to have been sister to Richard, Lord Berners, of Essex, and prioress of Sopwell, near St. Albans. She is said to have flourished about the year 1460, and is celebrated for her learning and accomplishments.

Besides being the first printed Treatise on the subject in the English language, this work affords us rude representations of the different kinds of tackle in use, and contains directions and remarks which have been copied in some recent Treatises on Angling.

On the first page a wood-cut of birds, and on the reverse a group of men with a hawk, underneath the title above.

Fig. a, 5 leaves, the first blank, making 6. b, 6 leaves. c, 6 leaves (Hawkyng ends on c, 5, and Huntynge commences on c, 6).

d, 6 leaves. e, 6 leaves (Coat-armour commences on e, 6). f, 4 leaves. g, 4 leaves (on reverse of g, 4, "Here begynyth the treatise of fysshynge wyth an Angle"). h, 6 leaves. i, 4 leaves. "Here begynyth the blaysynge of arma." a, 6 leaves. b, 6 leaves. c, 6 leaves. d, 7 leaves.

Here in this boke afore ben shewed the treatyses perteynyng to hawkyng and huntynge with others dyuers playsaunt materes belongynge unto noblesse: and also a ryght noble treatise of Cot armours: as in this present boke it may appere. And here we ende this laste treatyse whyche specyfeth of blaysynge of armys. Emprynted at Westmestre, by Wynkyn de Worde, the yere of thyncarnacon of our lord, M.cccc.lxxxvi.

On the last leaf (d, 5) is the device of Wynkyn de Worde, and on the reverse that of Caxton. This leaf is wanting in the copy in the British Museum.

Copies upon Vallum are in the Collections of the Earl of Pembroke and the Right Hon. Thomas Grenville: and upon paper in the British Museum; in the late Mr. Douce's Collection, now in the Bodleian; and in the late Mr. Dent's Library. Probably the finest extant upon paper was that formerly in the collection of Mr. Harrott.

This edition was reprinted in fac-simile, by Mr. Haslewood, Lond. 1810; and the Treatise of Fysshing wyth an Angle, from this edition, was reprinted by W. Pickering, in crown 8vo., with Baskerville's Types. London, 1827.

The first edition was printed at St. Alban's, 1486, containing the Treatises of Hawking, Hunting, and Coat-Armour; and reprinted by Markham, under the title of "The Gentleman's Academie, or the Booke of St. Albans: containing three most exact of excellent Bookes: the first of Hawking, the second of all the proper termes of Hunting, and the last of Armorie: all compiled by Juliana Barnes, in the yere from the incarnation of Christ, 1486. And now reduced into a better method by G. M. (Gervase Markham), London: printed for Humfrey Lownes, and are to be sold at his shop in Paules Church-Yard, 1695." 4to.

III. Here begynneth a treatyse of fysshynge wyth an Angle. Small 4to.

The title over the wood-cut of a man angling: on the reverse of D, III. Here endeth the boke of Fysshynge wyth other dyuers maters. Imprinted at London, by Wynkyn de Worde, dwellynge in Flete-strete, at the sygne of the Sonne.

Small 4to, with wood-cuts, A to DIIII. This edition appears to have been published as a distinct treatise: the concluding paragraph of the former edition is omitted, stating, "And for by cause that this present treatyse sholde not come to the hondys of eche ydle persone, whyche wolde desire it yf it were emprinted alone by itself, & put in a lytyll plaunflet; therefore I haue compylid it in a greter volume of dyuerse bokys concernynge to gentyll & noble men. To the entente that the forsayd ydle persones whyche scholde haue but lytyll mesure in the sayd dysporte of fysshynge, sholde not by this meane vtterly dystroye it." The only copy known, was formerly in Mr. Haworth's collection, and afterwards in Mr. Geo. Wilkinson's.

IV. The boke of hawkyng, and huntynge, and fysshynge. Small 4to.

Wood-cut group of Men with hawk, as in W. de Worde's edition 1496.

Reverse of C 7 || Thus endeth the boke of hawkyng.

C 8, Here begynneth the boke of huntynge; on reverse of F 1, four lines of the ballad:—Therefore assaye them euerych one, &c.

¶ Thus endeth the treatyse of huntynge, and other thynges.

And here begynneth a treatyse of fysshynge wt an angle. Wood-cut underneath.

F 2, commences Salomon, &c., and ends on reverse of H, iv.

Here endeth the boke of hawkyng, huntynge, and fysshynge, and with many other dyuers maters. Imprinted in Flete-street, at ye sygne of ye sonne, by Wykyn de Worde, with his colophon.

46 leaves.

The catchword throughout the volume is "Huntynge;" this edition reads "Of Saynt Thomas tyde of Caunterbure."

A copy of this edition, now in the possession of Mr. George Daniel, of Islington, is supposed to be unique.

V. The booke of hauking hunting and fysshing, with all the properties and medecynes that are necessary to be kept. Small 4to.

Over a rude engraving on wood, at the end of this portion there is no colophon.

Here beginneth the booke of Hunting, whereunto is added the measures of blowing. Over a wood-cut, no colophon.

- IX. The booke of hauking huntyng and fysshing, with all the properties and medecynes that are necessary to be kept. Small 4to.

Wood-cut of men and hawks, as in Wynkyn de Worde's edition.

Imprynted at London, in Paules Church-yarde, by Abraham Vele.

Here begynneth the booke of Hunting, where unto is added the measure of blowing.

Rude wood-cut with the hsees.

Imprynted at London, in Flete-strete, at the signe of the Rose Garland, by Wyllyam Coplande, for Robert Toye.

Here beginneth a tretyse of Fysehynge wyth an Angle.

Same cut as in Copland's edition.

Imprynted at London, in Paules Church-yarde, at the sygne of the Lambe, by Abraham Vele. 4to, A. to M., in 4's, containing 48 leaves.

b, l, reads: "Of Saynt Benet, the xi July."

Formerly in Mr. Milner's collection and afterwards in Mr. Pickering's. Another copy, imperfect, is in the British Museum.

x. The Booke of haukyng, huntynge, and fyshynge, with all the propertes and medecynes that are necessary to be kept. Small 4to.

Wood-cut of men and hawks, beneath the above title.

On the recto of A, ii. "The true fourmes of keping of haukes, as hath ben used in tymes past. And fyrst to speake of haukes, from an egge tyll they ben able to be taken."

On the reverse of E, iii. "Thus endeth the boke of haukyng."

F, i. "Here begynneth the booke of Hunting, wherunto is added the measures of blowing." Above a rude wood-cut, representing a man holding a spear and blowing a horn, with dogs in chase.

Reverse of F, i, commences with "Lykewyse as in the booke of Haukyng," &c.

J, ii. "Here nowe folowyng shall be shewed all shyres and the byshoppryches," &c.

J, iii. "The measures of blowing of a horne."

J, iv. "The ende of the whole measures of blowing."

Reverse of J, iv, is blank.

K, i. "Here begynneth a tretyse of Fysehynge wyth an Angle." Above a wood-cut of a man angling.

Reverse of K, i, commences "Salomon in his parables," &c.

Reverse of M, iv. "Here endeth the booke of haukyng, huntynge, and fyshynge, with others dyvers matters."

"Imprynted at London, in Flete-strete, at the Sygne of the Rose Garlande, by Wyllyam Coplande: for Rychard Tottell."

B. L. 4to, 96 pages.

There is a copy of this edition in the Library of the Right Honourable Thomas Grenville, at the British Museum. In a note at the end of the volume, Mr. Grenville observes, "This edition is not known to Ames or Herbert, nor has a second copy of it come to my knowledge, though there is one nearly the same, printed for Toye and Coplande. There is no date of the year of printing this book, but it appears, from Ames, that Coplande was fined by the Company of Stationers, in 1661, for printing these three Tracts. The present edition of Tottell's differs in its colophon at least from those pointed out by Herbert as printed by Coplande, and except the reversed cut before the treatise of Fishing, accords exactly with Toye's in its contents."

There is probably another edition, by Coplande, yet undescribed— one in Lothbury, over against St. Margaret's Church.

xl. The boke of hawkyng huntynge and fyshinge, with all the propertes and medecynes that are necessary to be kept. Small 4to.

The treatise of Hawkyng ends on reverse of E, iii, of Hunting on F, ii, and of Fishing on reverse viiiij.

Each treatise has a distinct colophon; the last is "Here endeth the boke of Hawkyng, Huntynge, and Fyshynge, with other dyvers matters."

Imprynted at London, in Paul's Chyrch-yerde, by me, Hery Tab Finis." A. to M., in 4's.

The only copy known is among Cryne's books in the Bodleian Library.

XII. The boke of hawkyng huntynge and fysshynge, with all the properties and medecynes that are necessarye to be kepte. Small 4to.

On title, wood-cut, group of 8 birds.

On the reverse of E, 4. Imprynted at London, in Forster-laen, by me John Waley. Finis.

On F, 1. Here begynneth the boke of huntynge; and ends on the reverse, J, ii. Imprynted at London, in Forster Laen, by John Waley.

On K, 1, commences. Here begynneth a treatyse of fysshynge with an angla. Ends on M, 4.

Here endeth the boke of Hawkyng, Huntynge, and fysshynge, with other dyuers mathers. Imprynted at London, in Forster laen, by John Waley. Finis.

A. to M. in fours, except 1, which has two leaves only. In all 46 leaves.

h. 1, reads: "Of saynte Thomas tyde of Cantarbur.".

N.B. This copy may or may not be imperfect; in most copies the measures of blowing are printed on I, iii, and I, iv, with the imprint of the 2nd part. But in this edition the imprint is at the end of the ballad, therefore it appears perfect; it is not mentioned on the title. Formerly in Mr. Pickering's collection.

Sold, 8s.

XIII. The boke of hawkyng huntynge and fyshynge, with all the properties and medecynes that are necessary to be kepte. Small 4to.

On title wood-cut of the Hawk within 6 scroll blocks and 2 flowers.

Imprynted at London in Flete strete by Wyllyam Powell.

Here begynneth the booke of huntynge. Where unto is added the measures of blowing.

Wood-cut with two dogs and a stag, and an ornament composed of four blocks, two on each side.

Imprynted at London in Flete strete, at the sygne of the George, next to saynt Dunstones churche by Wyllyam Powell.

Here begynneth a tretyse of fyshynge with an angla.

Wood-cut as in Coplande, with a border added in the outer and inner margin.

Imprynted at London in Flete strte at the sygne of George next to saynt Dunstones Church by Wyllyam Powell.

h. 1, reads: "Of saynt Benet the xl. of July."

Formerly in Mr. Pickering's collection. A. to M. in 4, containing 48 leaves.

Sold, 7s. 5s.
